6 The first, second and third wave of Covid 19 pandemic affected multiple sector and has had the most significant impact on the manufacturing sector and service sector. While the first few weeks of this year under review appear to be difficult due to omicron-led third wave, the following months are expected to see recovery getting back on track. While the omicron variant is highly transmissible, it has been seen to be less severe as compared to previous variants. Given the uncertain nature of virus, there could be neither wave also. With improving vaccination rates and our ability to cope, the damage to life and livelihoods were largely limited. High vaccination rates enable greater mobility and recovery rate increased a large.

The Hotel industry demand is recovering at a sharp pace after the third wave of pandemic aided by easing restrictions, the high pace of vaccination, people precautionary measures to tackle Covid.
